Inverse Scattering Problems for the Radiative Transport Equation

John C. Schotland

The central theme of the lectures will be inverse scattering problems for the radiative transport equation. The study of such problems is motivated by applications to image reconstruction in optical tomography. Recent efforts to develop fast algorithms will be surveyed and illustrated with numerical simulations and experimental results in model systems.